Lynch replied, "you don't want to either," and walked away from the table and out of the door. O'Neil took a glass of water at the counter and said, "all I have to say is, my partner is a coward." Schoon-maker said to O'Neil "what would you do? Would you hurt the dog?" O'Neil replied "no I wouldn't hurt the dog."

Dr. Bergstein, sworn—At I o'clock on the morning of the 6th of July I called professionally on John H. Lynch, whom I found lying insensible with a gunshot wound upon the right side of his head. On a further examination I foundanother wound in the back of the shoulder. John H. Lynch died at 20 minutes to 2 o'clock, a. m. July 12, 1873. There was a post mortem examination. This morning the prosecution will probably rest the case, and the testimony for the defense will be taken. yesterday one witness made this statement: "They tell me there were only three shots fired, but I thought there were a dozen." Attorney-"Are your were a dozen." Attorney—"Are your ears so unused to the sound of a pistol shot that you could think there were twelve shots when there were only three?" Witness—"Yes. I never saw a man killed before." Attorney—"How long have you been on the Pacific Coast?" Witness—"Since '49." [The audience surprised.] Attorney—"How long in Pioche?" Witness—"Since five days after the last general election."

Pierce.
Thos. McMasters, Louis Gros, Michael Fay. As may be seen by this list, three of the jurors—D. B. Shanklank, John Chisholm and J. M. Pierce—also served in the trial of Jefferson Howard, convicted of manuslaughter.

At 10 a. m. yesterday the taking of testimony for the prosecution was continued. Below we give a condensation of the testimony of each witness, omitting what is merely corroborative.

Wm. Webber (who was employed by Lynch as waiter), sworn.—Besides those mentioned by the last witness there were two women, one of whom is called Freddie, in the restaurant. I heard a shot, went to the door and heard a second shot, which I saw Harrington fire into the crowd. I then turned to go back again, and as I turned I saw Lynch fall; I then heard a third shot. When Harrington fired the second shot Lynch was standing two or three feet from the other parties.

ALI Sorts.—Yesterday we had weather which we can characterize by no better title than "Pioche weather." In the afternoon we had thund r, dust and sunshine all together. In the evening, a tremendous storm was seen to pass over the weather of us, going from southwest to northeast. At night, there were vivid flashes of lightning east, west and north of us, with thunder and some rain.
